The third number was Flotow's "Marths," and just here, by way of parenthesis, occurred semathing without precedent in the association's history. Stage fright must have gotten the test of some of the em-a ears, for as the first notes of the 'Last Ross of Summer' were heard the musical conductor rapped a stop. Whether this was because of errors on the part of the soloist or the accompanying instruments is not known; but that it was of very doubtful propriety seems clear, as it only served to add to the timidibeen alluded to as "stage fright" upon the cer and druggist. part of the others. Finished performances are not expected, and that the association does so well is creditable. The second part of the programme, arranged for reed and brass instruments, and a piano duet by Misses Christie Folmar and Katle Myrer,

No vocal quartette exis s who voices blend more perfeelly than those of Madame Fry and daugh-ters. Madame Fry has devoted her entire time to the study of music, and began her public musical work at sixteen years of age. Naturally her daughters partake of her musical talent, hence the perfect and artistic rendering of their vocal quartet. Prof. Geo. J. D. Currie, the humorist and dra matic reader is also connected with this company, and speaking of him the Boston Traveler says: "Mr. Geo. J D.
